"This volume is part of an intergenerational and intercultural exchange by historical players who are, quite literally, living and experiencing, teaching and learning a new, historically unprecedented moment of intercultural change and shifting power relations."

--From the Foreword by Allan Luke, Queensland University of Technology, Australia

East Meets West in Teacher Preparation gives voice to an increasing number of teacher educators from China teaching in America's universities. With this unique book, American educators can learn about Chinese educational thinking and practices directly from those who have personal and professional knowledge of and experience in both the United States and Chinese systems. Drawing on their lived experiences and perspectives, contributors discuss how they view the similarities and differences between educational systems in the United States and China, what strategies they use to navigate through complex sociocultural boundaries, and what possibilities exist for the American and Chinese educational communities to learn from each other. This important book offers educators an in-depth exploration and understanding of the growing relationship between Chinese and American pedagogical approaches and practices.

Contributors: Wen Ma, Ming Ming Chiu, Ye He, Ran Hu, Xiufeng Liu, Miguel A. Padilla, Chang Pu, Ko-Yin Sung, Chuang Wang, Wanying Wang, Guili Zhang, Meilan Zhang, and Binyao Zheng
