Wildfowl decoys of the Pacific Coast: Carving traditions of British Columbia, Washington, Oregon, and California Michael R Miller

From DJ flap - Book presents the lives and works of major Pacific Coast carvers those who, by the quality and quantity of their work, left an indelible mark on the carving heritage of this great region. It also includes factory decoys by Pacific Coast companies, selected unknown works, and makers whose output may not have been large, but whose quality of workmanship is indisputable. The makers of these decoys may now be more widely recognized for their achievement ranking with those of the top creators of the decoy art form. (Description by http-mart)
