Anton is a handsome, talented geologist who works at the Belgian Institute of Geology but seems forever doomed to attract the wrong kind of woman. Gael is stuck in a dead-end job and the fiancée of a man she doesn't love. Both are dreamers – that is, people out of sorts in a world that thinks only of making a quick buck and of finding short-term sexual gratification...

The dreamers meet and fall in love, of course, but the world – in the form of the wily, embittered Pauline – quickly tears them part again. Only when Anton sets off in search of Gael in a remote corner of sub-Saharan Africa do the lovers escape the pressures and binds of Western living and the strange and desolate beauty of the landscape begins to exert its magical redemption.

Blending philosophy, farce and romance, Wherever You Are I will Find You is an impassioned plea for the power of dreams, for cross-cultural empathy and for the future of a continent.

Dr Peter Peeters was born in Belgium where he studied and specialised in high-energy physics, later working with CERN and Argonne National Laboratory in the United States. He is the author of the critically acclaimed The Elephant Within Us (Book Guild, 2012) and several non-fiction titles concerned with the future of humanity and the planet.
